

London, who was pleased to tell me, that when the said Church was sold, his Lordship would give his Grant and Title for the building of another.

Hereupon I indeavoured to sell it, and finding two persons, that would buy the same, the Lord Bishop of London would not consent thereto, lest the Party should make a meeting house thereof. Hereupon I went to Doctor of St Martins, who proposing it to the Parish, they consented before the said Lord Bishop to let it be apprais'd by two able workmen. The church was accordingly viewed and rated to be worth 626 £. The Parish proffered 168 £. alledging that the ground was theirs, and not the Bishops. This agreement falling off, I found out others, who proffered 62 £. more than the Parish had done, which they of the Parish coming to understand, they proffered 200 £. which I denying to do, they told me they would take the Church without it, as they did accordingly, breaking open the door and taking possession. Hereupon I indeavoured to carry the person who broke open the door before a Justice, that I might justifie myself, but the Parish not permitting him to go, I went myself, but not finding the Justice, I desisted from any further proceeding.

This Relation I have thought fit to make that thereby all Persons may see I never sold the said Church, nor received any sum for the building thereof.

London, Printed for A. F. 1682.

Placard in-folio. L'exemplaire conservé à la Bibliothèque du Musée britannique, sous la cote : 816. m. 9 (118), est peut-être unique.

---

572

Βίος Δημητρίου Βασιλέως Μοσχολίας, Σαντομήρου Βοεβόδου
καὶ ἄρχοντος τῆς Λεχίας. Ἐνετίησιν. 1682.

In-8°. Titre emprunté à André Papadopoulos-Vrétos, Catalogue, seconde partie, n° 68. Voir dans le tome premier, page 90, n° 71, une édition de ce poème, qui est peut-être la première.

---

